University Park, PA. March 29 - Movin' On, Penn State's student-run music festival, presents a full lineup for its annual festival at the IM Fields on April 26. The lineup includes Dayglow, Sexyy Red, and Freddie Gibbs as well as The 502s, the Student Programming Association's (SPA) sponsored act, and Battle winner, which will be announced after the event on April 9. Dayglow and Sexyy Red are co-headlining the festival. Movin' On is funded by the Penn State student activity fee with the help from the University Park Allocation Committee (UPAC).

Taking the stage first will be the winner of Battle, a competition where Penn State student performers vie for the opening slot at the festival. After the performance, The 502s, presented by SPA, will take the stage. The American indie folk band from Florida features members Ed Isola, Matthew Tonner, Sean Froehlich, Joe Capati, Nick Melashenko, and Graci Phillips. Known for their eclectic instrumentals, including banjo, piano, and horns, they have released hits like "Just A Little While" and "Magdalene." Madlib, releasing the critically acclaimed album "Piñata" in 2014. Following the success of "Piñata," Gibbs continued to push boundaries with his solo projects, including "Shadow of a Doubt" and "You Only Live Twice." Collaborations with The Alchemist further solidified his reputation, with projects like "Alfredo" receiving Grammy nominations and commercial success. Gibbs's signing with Warner Records in 2020 marked a new chapter in his career, leading to the release of singles like "4 Thangs" and "Gang Signs," which further demonstrated his versatility and staying power in the rap scene. His fifth, and most recent, solo album, "Soul Sold Separately," was released in 2022.

Just in time for sunset, Movin' On 2024 will continue with Sexy Red. After bursting into the music scene in 2018 with her debut track "Ah Thousand Jugs," Sexy Red's breakthrough came in 2021 with the release of her debut mixtape, "Ghetto Superstar." Collaborating with Drake once again, she co-performed alongside SZA on the single "Rich Baby Daddy," highlighting her versatility as an artist. Known for her straightforward lyrics and classic Southern rap style, Sexy Red has garnered praise for her authenticity and energy. sophomore album, "Harmony House," exploring themes of social media and the quest for fulfillment. Tracks like "Close to You" and "Something" captivated audiences with their introspective lyrics and catchy hooks. Continuing their momentum, Dayglow announced their third studio album, "People in Motion," in 2022, accompanied by singles like "Then It All Goes Away" and "Deep End."
